Constructing identities in online communities of practice

A case study of online learning

Leila Kajee
Constructing identities in online communities of practice

A case study of online learning

Leila Kajee
Contents

- Preface ........................................... 9
- Acknowledgements ............................... 11
- List of figures ..................................... 13

Introduction: A context for online communities of practice 15

Part I: Beyond the digital divide: Context, theory, access

1. The terrain of online learning: A local and global perspective 45
2. Theorising learning, communities of practice, literacies, and identity 87

Part II: Design, methodology and implications

3. Designing the project ........................... 119

Part III: Electronic literacy and identity

4. Electronic (ICT) literacy as a social practice: Issues of ICT access, proficiency and practice 139
5. Making meaning: Negotiation, participation and constructing identities in online communities of practice 177

Part IV: Implications for teaching and learning: Towards a model of online learning

6. Online communities of practice: From disadvantage to empowerment 227

- Appendix ........................................ 243
- Bibliography ..................................... 247
- Index ............................................. 265