Professional Military Education

A Cross-Cultural Survey

This book brings together non-Western viewpoints on military pedagogy and professional military education (PME). In doing so, it seeks to provide a counterbalance to the predominantly European and North American bias found within the research field, as well as generating new insights on Latin American, African and Asian pedagogical commentaries and critiques. The collection contains essays from PME researchers and practitioners across fourteen countries, on subjects including large-scale educational reform, civil-military and academic influences on military pedagogy, internationalisation, cross-cultural collaboration, and interoperability within military education.

Duraïd Jalili is a doctoral student at the Defence Studies Department of King's College London and a Graduate Teaching Assistant at the U.K. Joint Services Command and Staff College.

Hubert Annen is head of Military Psychology and Military Pedagogy Studies at the Swiss Military Academy at ETH Zurich.
